

Solvothermal synthesis of barium titanate – a filler for high temperature resistant coatings

© Svetlana V. Chuppina,^{*+} Alla I. Arsiry, and Oksana N. Lukyanenko

Department of Glass Technology and General Technology of Silicates. St. Petersburg State Technological Institute (Technical University). Moscow St., 26. St. Petersburg, 190013. Russia. E-mail: tchoup@rambler.ru

^{*}Supervising author; ⁺Corresponding author

Keywords: barium titanate, filler, synthesis in the melt, tetrabutoxytitanium, organosilicate coatings, surface free energy of coatings.

Abstract

In this paper we discuss the synthesis of barium titanate in molten potassium nitrate using tetrabutoxytitanium as a source of titanium dioxide. Synthetic products are used to fill traditionally resistant decontaminated organosilicate coatings and determined the characteristic properties of the coating.