Additive calculation as way of substance identification by gas chromatography

© Sergey M. Leshev, Alexey V. Kaplin, Ruslan A. Yurchenko,* and Vladimir A. Vinarskiy
Analytical Chemistry Department. Belarusian State University. Leningradskaja St., 14. Minsk, 220050. Republic of Belarus. E-mail: kaplinalexey@gmail.com

*Supervising author; †Corresponding author

Keywords: additive calculations, increments, gas chromatography, examination, JWH.

Abstract

The applications of the additive scheme for predicting the retention of substances in gas chromatography are shown. A method is described for identification of substances using structurally related compounds as standards. The numerical values of group increments were shown to depend on temperature.